

Kroc Center

Major Mark A. Woodcock, Salvation Army Memphis Area Commander

As the current Memphis Area Commander, Major Mark A. Woodcock oversees a seven-county area, organizing disaster services, shelters for women and children, recovery centers, daycares and two Corps worship facilities.

Major Woodcock was born in Salisbury, Maryland, and graduated from The Salvation Army College for Officer's Training in Atlanta, Georgia (Salvation Army seminary). Having been an Officer/Minister for over 20 years, Mark has had the following appointments with The Salvation Army:

| | |
|---------------------|-------------------------------------|
| Martinsville, VA | Jackson, MS Divisional Headquarters |
| Gaithersburg, MD | Jackson, MS Area Command |
| Stanton, VA | Memphis, TN Area Command |
| Charlottesville, VA | |

Major Woodcock is a second-generation Officer (Minister) and Salvationist (member of The Salvation Army). His wife, Rhea Dawn, is a third-generation Officer and a fourth-generation Salvationist. Major Woodcock and his wife were married in 1980 and have two children, Ashlee and Ali.